THE LAMBERT COLLECTION

INTRODUCTION

The formation of collections of pictures by Americans of taste and judgment may be roughly divided into two periods—the time when modern continental artists were almost exclusively the vogue, and the time when the Old Masters of various countries became what may be described as the “ruling passion.” Of the former period we have an ample and exhaustive survey in Edward Strahan’s “Art Treasures in America,” issued in three large volumes some thirty-six years ago. The taste in those bygone days was largely for pictures which told a story, something which the mind could grasp without any great effort. The wealthy American in those days was a man whose business occupations were so exacting and varied that he had little or no time for the leisurely tour in Europe where, and where only, he could study the great masters of other days.

During the last thirty or forty years, collecting, so far as pictures are concerned, has become almost entirely revolutionized; the gods of former times have become displaced and other and totally different gods reign in their stead. This evolution is not peculiar to America, but it has been effected more rapidly and with more thoroughness there than would be possible in any European country. It is not that pictures by modern artists are not collected, or that, in the words of Tacitus, vetera extollimus recentium incuriosi, but that tastes have developed into other grooves; and certain phases of pictorial art, once popular, have long ceased to attract.

Picture collecting is of a progressive character, and but for the tastes of forty years ago there would be to-day but few collections of Old Masters in the United States. At some future time it will be interesting to inquire into the causes which brought about this revolution; to the names of those who contributed to it, such as Mr. John G. Johnson, Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, Mr. P. A. B. Widener and Mr. B. Altman must be added that of Mr. Catholina Lambert. All these men began to collect on the lines that were popular at the time, but as their intimate acquaintanceship with the old masters grew, so their love for them increased.

Mr. Lambert, who has been one of the most enterprising and energetic of American collectors for nearly half a century, has made a wise and admirable compromise between the old masters and the modern, by collecting and retaining such of the latter as have every promise of what may be termed permanency. The Old Masters can always take care of themselves, for they will always remain more or less unaffected by the changes in fashion and taste. Mr. Lambert has succeeded in getting together one of the largest collections now existing in private hands. In forming it he has relied largely upon his own judgment. This large and varied collection is now to be dispersed; its many units will in the immediate future find new homes and help to adorn other collections, and the pleasure which they have given to the present owner will be transferred to others.

No one, and least of all Mr. Lambert, will be disposed to insist that all these pictures are masterpieces. All collections, public as well as private, contain pictures which are interesting rather than great; and it is not always the important pictures which give the greatest pleasure to the owner. And it is the interesting pictures, perhaps, which constitute the backbone of the Lambert collection. There are, nevertheless, many of the first rank of importance, both among the Old Masters and the modern. Special attention may be drawn to the Andrea del Sarto, to the Botticelli, to the Luini altarpiece, and to the Rembrandt portrait of a Rabbi. As in the case of so many other early pictures scarcely anything is known of the provenance of these pictures: the first three having been conveyed out of Italy into England without any flourish of trumpets. They were bought by Mr. Lambert on their artistic merits and are now offered for sale under the same conditions. The Rembrandt is an unquestionably fine picture, and the fact that another version of it exists in Berlin does not invalidate its authenticity.

The quality of the early Spanish pictures is generally good, and among them are some important examples of the men who followed Velasquez and Murillo, such as Carreño de Miranda, Coello and Pereda. The Dutch and Flemish portrait painters of the Seventeenth Century are represented by a number of first-rate examples in good condition. Particular attention may be directed to the Marc Geeraerts portrait of Lady Kenelm Digby, who sat to many painters for her portrait and whose intellectual gifts inspired so many of the poets and writers of her time; to the Van der Helst portrait of a gentleman, the De Keyser group of the Parker family, to Mierevelt's portrait of Pieter de Schilde, Councillor of Brabant, to Moreelse's portrait of another public official, the Sheriff of Dordrecht, and to Verspronck's portrait of Mynheer Ten Eyck. In subject pictures, the same schools are also well represented—Van der Werff by a marvelous piece of flesh painting in "The Incredulity of St. Thomas," from the famous Hope of Deepdene Collection; Honthorst by an "Adoration of the Magi," with its curiously Flemish conception of Oriental life and costume; the big Jordaens picture of "Dædalus Fastening the Wings on Icarus"—to select only a few of the works worthy of the attention of the amateur and others.

The early English school forms a very important section of Mr. Lambert's collection. The pictures range from William Dobson, whose art greatly profited by his friendship with Van Dyck, down to Sir Thomas Lawrence and his friendly rival Sir William Beechey. In the interval we have—and here again we can only mention a few without prejudice to the others—William Hogarth's group of the Price family; Thomas Gainsborough's portrait of General Johnson; two particularly fine Lawrences, "The Two Sisters" and "Mrs. Inglis," as well as a most imposing and attractive group "At the Opening of the Gate. Wm. Bennett and Richard Yeo may be specially mentioned among the Sir Joshuas, whilst the fine series of Richard Wilsons and good examples of other and later English landscape and portrait painters help us to realize the greatness and excellence of English art from its origin down to the latter half of the last century.

Mr. Lambert's pictures by modern artists are in a manner dominated by the splendid series of the works of Monticelli—by far the most important to come into the market for many years, and probably the finest group which can occur during this and the next generation. As this feature is dealt with separately, it need not be enlarged upon here. Another striking feature is the large number of pictures by the American artist, Ralph Blakelock; among them a wonderful moonlight landscape of large size. Yet a third feature, having regard to number and quality, is seen in the many works of Georges Michel, the French artist who has depicted for us the Montmartre of Paris as it had been for centuries and as it was until the middle of the last century. The story of modern French art is brought up almost to our own day. Nearly all the Barbizon painters are represented, as well as the artists who rank with them and yet do not fall quite into the same group. The important picture of Gustave Courbet and the brilliant Diaz may be specially mentioned. Several large and important examples of Puvis de Chavannes and of the Russian artist Verestchagin are among the features of the collection—gallery pictures which should find permanent homes in some public institution.

In no phase of modern art is the collection more remarkable than in that of the modern Impressionists—Monet, Renoir, Sisley and Pissarro are all represented by brilliant examples of their art done at their most spontaneous periods. The interest which Mr. Lambert took in American artists is also fully manifest, not alone in the Blakelock pictures already mentioned, but in the large number of works by the leading men in American art up to the end of the last century.

It should be added, in conclusion, that, since comparatively few of the pictures have been exhibited either in Europe or in this country, so far as can be traced, and as the owner kept few notes of his numerous and varied purchases, many of the details have been furnished by Mr. Lambert from his retentive memory.

MONTICELLI

NOTES ON MONTICELLI

Monticelli is one of the most tragic figures in the history of modern art. As an artist and as a colorist he is sui generis, a law unto himself, a problem and a puzzle to students and critics. With many friends and admirers, and with wealth and fame just within his reach, Monticelli abandoned everything at the outbreak of the Franco-German War of 1870-71, and tramped back to his native city, where he remained to the end of his life, painting pot-boilers to bring him in a crust of bread and a glass of absinthe. Other painters survived the shock of the war, but for Monticelli the sun went down, never to rise again. He would have had the first claim to a niche in Sainte-Beuve's proposed temple to the neglected and misunderstood, but the irony of fate and the mutability of fashion have transformed the neglect of a quarter of a century into a widespread appreciation, although his theories of art as exemplified in his pictures are not yet clearly understood.

The biographical details concerning Monticelli are exceedingly few. He was born at Marseilles in 1824 of Italian parentage, and "grandit solitaire et sauvage, en pleine nature, courant tête nue au soleil l'été: dans la neige, en sabots." At about the age of sixteen he had attained to considerable efficiency in drawing, and at twenty-two he won the first prize at the Ecole des Beaux-Arts in Marseilles. He visited Paris in 1847, remaining there a year studying in the museums and in the atelier of Paul Delaroche. For a year or more he traveled about France, and in 1856 he was once more in Paris, where he became acquainted with Diaz, and, through him, with other artists. His works never appealed to the public, but artists and amateurs admired his extraordinary talents. Napoleon III paid 5,000 francs for one of his pictures (which was burnt in the Tuileries), and the Empress Eugénie had commissioned a series of large pictures (two of them are in Mr. Lambert's collection), and, but for the war, Monticelli, doubtless, would have taken his place among the great painters of the day.

The outbreak of the war of 1870 sounded the death-knell of the artist's hopes and ambitions. He returned to Marseilles, where he led a precarious Bohemian and solitary life, parting with his paintings for the value of a few francs. The death of his mother in 1883 still further hastened his decline, but his passion for bright colors survived to the last. There was no sale of "remaining works" or public dispersal of the elaborate and costly equipment of a fashionable painter's studio, to give Monticelli's name a new lease of life, for his atelier consisted of a bedroom with a bed, an easel and two chairs, and, above all, a large red silk curtain which was placed over the window and which served to bathe the whole room in purple.

Roughly speaking, Monticelli's work may be grouped into three periods. The first of these includes his semi-allegorical groups of women, dressed in the fashion of the Second Empire, walking in parks, with ruins of aqueducts and other buildings. To his second period, that by which he is most generally known, belong the charming little pictures inspired by stories in the "Decameron," by the legend of Faust and Marguerite, little fêtes-champêtres reminiscent of Watteau and Pater, romantic dells with statues and fountains, and peopled with ladies, gentlemen, horses and birds. In his third period may be classed provincial landscapes, marines and flower pieces. There is yet a fourth period into which fall his latest works, but in these the brain no longer guides the hand; the color is as brilliant as ever, but the discordant notes, the amorphous masses of bright hues, all too effectively tell of the paralysis of mind and body.

It is not in Monticelli that one seeks perspective of line or accurate draughtsmanship, any more than one goes to the novelist for strict historical accuracy. But like the novelist, he clothed the dry bones of fact with the brilliant and varied fancy of imagination. He is the Prospero of French art of the nineteenth century; his brilliant chromatic effect, his "maids glimmeringly grouped" in their dazzling dresses, and his cavaliers in their mediæval costumes, revealed a new beauty in art.

As a silk manufacturer as well as a collector, Mr. Lambert from the first had a profound admiration for Monticelli and his brilliant color schemes. He knew the artist, and has formed what is probably the finest collection of his works in existence. He has twenty-nine examples which cover the three best periods of the artist's career. Dr. Mireur of Marseilles had eighty-eight, and Monsieur Delas had sixty-nine, but both these collections were scattered fifteen years ago. Four of Mr. Lambert's pictures are superb and unrivaled. Two of these, which are among the largest which Monticelli ever painted, were commissions from the Empress Eugénie, and, but for the downfall of the Second Empire, would have adorned the boudoir of one of her majesty's residences. Two others are the luxuriant pictures—oblong in shape—which Mr. Lambert obtained direct from the artist. These four pictures more especially represent Monticelli at the height of his remarkable powers of creative fancy, and are among the greatest pictures of the period. But examples of the other phases of Monticelli's art are in the sale—from flowers to portraits—and it cannot be doubted that when this wonderful series of pictures is placed on public view it will excite admiration for an artist whose genius has only been fully recognized within recent years.

VASIL VASILIEVICH VERESTCHAGIN

RUSSIAN: 1842—1904

1—THE CAVE OF ENDOR

BEFORE the battle, as we know, Saul went to consult the Witch of Endor. His mission was not without danger, as the village of Endor is on the north side of little Hermon, at the foot of which was the camp of the Philistines. Saul turned to the right, and so could reach Endor "in two hours time." The witch predicted to the King his defeat and death. "And to-morrow shalt thou and thy sons be with me" (said the spirit of Samuel to the King); "the Lord also shall deliver the host of Israel into the hands of the Philistines" (1 Samuel xxviii., 19).

Height, 4½ inches; width, 3½ inches.

From the artist's sale, New York, 1891.

VASILI VASILIEVICH VERESTCHAGIN

RUSSIAN: 1842—1904

2—THE STABLE OF THE NATIVITY

STRONG light, falling from above, illumines the stone walls and stairway of an interior in which is seen, with back to the spectator, a figure in a long black cloak and a crimson fez.

Signature at the lower left partly effaced by fading of pigment and the action of time.

From the artist's sale, New York, 1891.

AERT VAN DER NEER

DUTCH: 1604—1677

3—EARLY MORNING

VIEW on a broad winding river with numerous sailing crafts, houses and trees on either side, with figures; early sunrise effects.

Panel: Height, 8½ inches; length, 13 inches.

JOHN CONSTABLE, R.A.

ENGLISH: 1776—1837

4—STUDY

Study of an autumnal scene with two groups of trees, and a pond with fisherman.

Panel: Height, 9½ inches; length, 12½ inches.

STANISLAS LÉPINE

FRENCH: 1836—1892

5—RIVER SCENE

A GRAY day in the outskirts of Paris. The Seine, with some boats moving slowly along, occupies the left foreground, while on the right is an expanse of sandy shore with figures near the brink of the river. In the distance are the buildings and smoke stacks of manufacturing establishments, and on the bank, at the left, are some suburban dwellings.

Height, 12½ inches; length, 20½ inches.

MARTIN RICO

SPANISH: 1850—1908

6—ON THE RIVERSIDE

MASSSES of trees, at the left, on the bank of a stream, are reflected in the placid waters. The sky is filled with cumulus clouds, tinted pink by the light of the sun at early evening.

Height, 15 inches; length, 23 inches.

Signed, Rico, at the lower left.

EVERT JAN BOKS

BELGIAN: 1838—

7—CASUS BELLI

A MAN and his wife have had a tiff over a milliner's bill or some other domestic cause of discussion and have both given up talking. The man, on one side of the table, smokes his meerschaum and taps his fingers on the back of his chair. His impatience is counterbalanced by the resigned attitude of his wife, who, chin in hand, gazes fixedly before her.

Panel: Height, 16 inches; length, 22½ inches.

On the back the artist has painted his signed declaration that he is the painter of the picture, finished at Antwerp in March, 1884.

PROFESSOR LUDWIG KNAUS

GERMAN: 1829—1910

8—LANDSCAPE AND PIGS

A HERD of pigs lying in comfort in the shade, at the foot of a hill. Sunlight illumines the distance.

Height, 19 inches; width, 14½ inches.

Signed and dated, 1878, on tree trunk at the left.

From the Albert Spencer Collection, New York, February 28, 1888.

AUGUSTE PAUL CHARLES ANASTASI

FRENCH: 1820—1889

9—LANDSCAPE

A BROAD river winds between its banks on which are seen trees and cottages. Sailing vessels are depicted on its surface and in the foreground are various figures and a boat. The effect is in moonlight.

Panel: Height, 12½ inches; length, 17 inches.

Signed at the lower left.

JOHN LEWIS BROWN

FRENCH: 1829—1890

10—CHEVAUX AU BORD DE LA MER

GROOMS exercising and bathing their horses in an inlet, with a high cliff rising, on the right, above the sea.

Panel: Height, 9½ inches; width, 7 inches.

ADOLPHE MONTICELLI

FRENCH: 1824—1886

11—LADY WITH A FAN

A LADY, in a gown of cramoisi velvet and white satin, seated before a lectern with a fan in her hand. The figure is depicted in profile view. Companion piece to No. 12.

Panel: Height, 10 inches; width, 4 inches.

ADOLPHE MONTICELLI

FRENCH: 1824—1886

12—THE CAVALIER

A CAVALIER in black velvet costume, mounted on a white horse, approaching on a road at the edge of a forest. Companion piece to No. 11.

Panel: Height, 10½ inches; width, 4½ inches.

ADOLPHE MONTICELLI

FRENCH: 1824—1886

13—*FAUST AND MARGUERITE

FAUST, Marguerite and Mephistopheles grouped closely together. A color harmony with strong notes of red, light and dark blues, qualified with gray and, in the background, blue and green.

Panel: Height, 12 inches; width, 8 inches.

Signed at the lower left.

ADOLPHE MONTICELLI

FRENCH: 1824—1886

14—*FLOWER PIECE

A WHITE and brown Chinese vase filled with field daisies. On the left of the bouquet is a large red blossom.

Panel: Height, 11 inches; width, 6½ inches.

RALPH ALBERT BLAKELOCK, A.N.A.

AMERICAN: 1847—

15—*LANDSCAPE AND MOONLIGHT

A LAKE framed in with trees on either side of the composition. The full moon, rising over the hills of the farther shore, is reflected on the waters.

Height, 8 inches; width, 6 inches.

RALPH ALBERT BLAKELOCK, A.N.A.

AMERICAN: 1847—

16—*LANDSCAPE

THIS landscape is especially notable for the frank, clear tints of blue and white in the sky. It is much less subdued in color than most of the landscapes by this individual artist, but it is most convincing by its rare brilliancy. Dark tree foliage and gray greens and browns in the foreground harmonize in charming fashion with the clarity of the sky.

Panel: Height, 10 inches; length, 12½ inches.

GEORGES MICHEL

FRENCH: 1763—1843

17—LANDSCAPE

A LANDSCAPE harmony in brown and gray. On the left is rising ground, mostly in shadow, crowned with trees; on the right, beyond, the wide stretch of a plain bathed in sunlight. The sky is composed of gray clouds, graduated into warm but delicate-yellow light on the left.

Height, 14 inches; length, 18 inches.

GEORGES MICHEL

FRENCH: 1763—1843

18—LANDSCAPE WITH CASTLE

A LANDSCAPE with an attractive scheme of color. The sky is blue with white clouds. At the left is a group of forest trees with a castle, on a hill, silhouetted against the sky. Some cattle are seen in the foreground; there is a river in the middle distance, and beyond, at the right, is a stretch of hills in atmospheric tones of blue.

Height, 17 inches; length, 27 inches.

GEORGES MICHEL

FRENCH: 1763—1843

19—LANDSCAPE WITH TREES

A COMPOSITION of classical aspect with large, full-foliaged trees on either side of a roadway. The dark masses of the trees showing against the sky and the sky itself, with its great white clouds, are so placed as to form a very striking ensemble.

Canvas: Height, 19 inches; length, 23½ inches.

VICTOR PIERRE HUGUET

FRENCH: 1835—1902

20—THE ARRIVAL

A PARTY of Moorish horsemen at the entrance of a white-walled house with a green, railed balcony over the doorway. One of the riders has dismounted and his horse is being led through a doorway at the left of the picture. The effect shows full sunlight.

Height, 15 inches; length, 18 inches.

Signed at the lower left.

JOHN LEWIS BROWN

FRENCH: 1829—1890

21—THE MEET

A BROAD stretch of flat country with hills in the distance. A lady and two gentlemen, seated in their saddles, await the beginning of the chase.

Panel: Height, 15 inches; width, 10½ inches.

STANISLAS LÉPINE

FRENCH: 1836—1892

22—MOONLIGHT

THE composition shows a pond in the right foreground and, at the left, a group of trees. In the middle distance a church tower is seen. Over all, a gray, night sky with saffron moon.

Canvas: Height, 18 inches; length, 21½ inches.

Signed at the lower left.

AUGUST FRANZEN, A.N.A.

AMERICAN: 1863—

23—*A VISTA IN FRANCE

FROM a sandy dooryard, enclosed with a low stone wall and with a fruit tree in the left center, the view comprises the walls of country houses and the spire of a church.

Water Color: Height, 17½ inches; width, 11½ inches.

Signed at the lower right.

ARTHUR QUARTLEY, N.A.

AMERICAN: 1839—1886

24—*MARINE

A HEADLAND, with houses and a church, juts out from the right of the composition. Two sailing vessels are seen approaching and the sky, of quiet blue-gray with clouds in the upper portion, is illuminated by the rising moon, which is just appearing over the headland.

Height, 13 inches; length, 21 inches.

Signed at the lower right.

F. K. M. REHN, N.A.

AMERICAN: 1848—1914

25—LANDSCAPE

A SUNSET landscape with marshes and stream in the foreground. At the left, on the horizon, are a windmill and some other buildings. At the horizon the sky is reddened by the setting sun and warm tones are gradated up to the top of the composition. Well up, on the left, is seen the thin crescent of the new moon.

Height, 16 inches; length, 23½ inches.

Signed at the lower left, FKM REHN.

EDWARD LAMSON HENRY, N.A.

AMERICAN: 1841—

26—UNINVITED GUESTS

A FARMHOUSE scene wherein the master, probably a bachelor, who is a portly man of middle age, has fallen asleep after his meal at a small table and the chickens, as is their wont when not kept away by a watchful housewife, have invaded the kitchen. Through an open door is seen a cheery yard under the light of the summer sun. The work is marked by the excellent drawing and complete rendering of detail that is characteristic of one of the most popular of American genre painters.

Height, 18½ inches; length, 24½ inches.

Signed at the lower right, E. L. HENRY.

SIR JOHN GILBERT, R.A.

ENGLISH: 1817—1897

27—THE HERALD OF THE TOWER

FULL-LENGTH figure of a herald in a scarlet tunic trimmed with black and gold, and wearing a black velvet cloak. The head is turned toward the spectator and the right hand supports a silver trumpet from which hangs a richly embroidered banner. The setting for the figure is formed by the massive pillars of a castle porch and a sky with gray clouds.

Height, 23½ inches; width, 16 inches.

This is probably "A Trumpeter" exhibited at the British Institution in 1866, No. 76.

AUGUST FRANZEN, A.N.A.

AMERICAN: 1863—

28—HEAD OF A GIRL

THE head of a young girl whose shoulders are covered by a white kerchief. The background is composed of vari-colored foliage.

Water Color: Height,  $21\frac{1}{2}$  inches; width, 13 inches.

JOHN LEWIS BROWN

FRENCH: 1829—1890

29—LA BAIGNADE DES CHEVAUX

A LAD with three horses in the surf in the foreground. On the left, farther out, a groom with two other horses. Beyond is a headland with a low, white tower, and overhead there is a fine sky of white clouds with spaces of blue in the upper portion.

Height,  $21\frac{1}{2}$  inches; width,  $13\frac{1}{2}$  inches.

STANISLAS LÉPINE

FRENCH: 1836—1892

30—STREET SCENE

A NARROW street with houses at the left and a steep incline of rock at the right, with overhanging foliage. A woman vendor in the roadway is bargaining with one of the tenants of the houses, who appears at a window. In the distance a priest is approaching.

Height, 22 inches; width, 15 inches.

CHARLES BARGUE

FRENCH: 1856—1883

31—PEASANT BOY OF THE APENNINES

HALF-LENGTH head of a little lad, whose back is toward the spectator, with head turned to look over his right shoulder. The wide-brimmed hat which shields his face is decorated with flowers.

Height, 22 inches; width, 18 $\frac{1}{2}$  inches.

Signed, BARGUE, at the lower left.

ADOLPHE MONTICELLI

FRENCH: 1824—1886

32—THE GRIFFIN

BESIDE a garden statue of a griffin a woman and a child are seen, the child holding a bunch of lilacs.

Panel: Height, 11 inches; width, 7½ inches.

ADOLPHE MONTICELLI

FRENCH: 1824—1886

33—THE CAVALCADE

A GROUP of horsemen. On the left a cavalier and a lady are seen looking at the riders. The setting for the figures is composed of trees and a sky of blue.

Panel: Height, 6½ inches; length, 19 inches.

ADOLPHE MONTICELLI

FRENCH: 1824—1886

34—ON THE TERRACE

A LADY and gentleman are seen, at the right, standing near a balustrade, ready to greet a lady in a yellow gown, the train of which is held up by two pages, who is approaching from the left.

Panel: Height, 7 inches; width, 19 inches.

ADOLPHE MONTICELLI

FRENCH: 1824—1886

35—FEEDING THE CHICKENS

A WOMAN, in blue and white, feeding a flock of chickens. The combs and plumage of the cock and hens give brilliant notes of red, yellow and white in the resonant ensemble.

Panel: Height, 14 inches; width, 10½ inches.

GEORGES MICHEL

FRENCH: 1763—1843

37—LANDSCAPE

A VERY simple motive of rolling country with a hill on the left. Light masses in the foreground, a middle distance in somber tones and a sky of gray, with varied cloud forms, complete a most effective ensemble.

Height, 19 inches; length, 24½ inches

GEORGES MICHEL

FRENCH: 1763—1843

38—LANDSCAPE WITH WINDMILL

A sky with storm clouds of dark gray overhangs a diversified landscape with a windmill, villages and farm lands. Beyond, on the left, is a glimpse of the distant sea. An impressive, dramatic composition.

Height, 17½ inches; length, 25½ inches.

GEORGES MICHEL

39—LANDSCAPE

A very skilfully composed gray landscape. The foreground is covered with a broad shadow and the principal elements of the composition are a group of cottages with white walls and thatched roofs, on the roadside, at the right; in the left center a fine oak, standing alone, and a sky of gray clouds with dark masses, at the right. On the left of the canvas through a rift in the clouds a broad gleam of sunshine illuminates the white walls of the cottages with fine effect.

Height, 19 inches; length, 25½ inches.

51—LANDSCAPE

A CLASSICAL composition showing a group of dark trees on a bank at the left. Other masses of trees appear on the right of the picture and through the middle ground runs a stream. Dark, gray clouds fill the upper part of the sky, and the lower part, nearing the horizon, is brightened by a stronger illumination.

Canvas: Height, 20 inches; length, 26 inches.

GEORGES MICHEL

52—THE RUINED CHÂTEAU

IN the left foreground is a ruined structure, with an archway spanning the water, and the remains of a massive tower. Beyond are a few trees. On the right, beyond intervening plains, is a hillside, gray-blue in the distance. Overhead are somber masses of cloud forms with the sky gradated, in the upper part, into a simple expanse of gray.

Height, 20½ inches; length, 26 inches.

GEORGES MICHEL

FRENCH: 1763—1843

53 LANDSCAPE

IN the foreground are some great trees which have been partly destroyed by wind and weather. Their trunks and branches grow upward in twisted forms. On the right, beyond, is a hill with thick-foliaged trees. The sky is composed of gray clouds.

65—LANDSCAPE

A ROADWAY leads from the right foreground into the middle distance where white cottages are seen and red-tiled roofs. On the left is a group of trees, in shadow, whose tops reach up out of the picture. On the right is a straw stack and a green tree in the sunlight. The sky is of quiet blue with white clouds.

Canvas: Height,  $23\frac{1}{2}$  inches; length, 29 inches.

Signed at the lower right, and dated '84.

CLAUDE MONET

FRENCH: 1840—

66—THE LAKE

A LAKE with overhanging trees reflected in the water. At the left, the gray sky, which is concealed from view by a tree, is reflected, forming contrasts with the greens which predominate in the scheme of color.

Height, 22½ inches; length, 30½ inches.

CAMILLE PISSARRO

67—THE CARREFOUR

THE foreground consists of an open space with irregular patches of grass and roadway at the top of an eminence. The road drops, in the middle of the picture, into the town. On the right is a white-walled dwelling, with its garden wall, and, beyond, in the town, are seen other houses embowered among the trees. The scene is animated by a number of figures. Over all is a blue sky of fine atmospheric depth.

GEORGE HERBERT McCORD, A.N.A.

AMERICAN: 1848—1909

82—WINDSOR CASTLE

THE massive round towers of the castle on the hill at the right rise high up in the composition, the more distant walls being partly lost in the vaporous atmosphere which is well depicted in the hazy but vibrating sky with great clouds and the sun faintly shining through the mist. In the foreground is the river with the bridge and a sturdily built sailing vessel moored in the quiet water.

Height, 60½ inches; width, 40½ inches.

LOUIS RITTER

83—THE VILLA CASTELLANI

A PICTURE of springtime in its smiling aspects in sunny Italy. A roadway, garden walls and terraces with trees in fresh, green foliage are the elements of the composition and the ensemble is harmonious and pleasing.

88—THE PERSECUTION OF THE HUGUENOTS

A GREAT assemblage of soldiers and civilians, among the latter a woman with a child clinging to her for protection, in a vast hangar the roof of which is supported by stone pillars. The central group is composed of the Catholic seigneur of the locality before whom the Huguenots are dragged for judgment, a suppliant, on his knees with back bared for the lash, and an officer of the soldiery who holds in his hand a rope, ending in a noose around the prisoner's neck. Excitement reigns among the people thus herded together at the command of the seigneur, and their vigorous efforts to shield themselves from the brutality of their captors is in strong contrast to the stern placidity of the judge and his entourage of officers and retainers who are grouped around him.

89—UNE RÉPÉTITION DE LA TRAGÉDIE

"MIRAME" CHEZ LE CARDINAL RICHELIEU

IN a richly furnished apartment, carpeted with red, are a dozen ladies and gentlemen of the court of Louis Treize, who are grouped, some seated, some standing, around the armchair of Cardinal Richelieu. The Cardinal, in his red robes and with his feet resting on a cushion, listens to the great comedian and dramatist, who is reading a new play to his powerful patron. The picture is admirably composed and exhibits the work, in his best period, of a celebrated French painter of historical genre.

Height, 46 inches; length, 58 inches.

Signed at the lower left, and dated 1879.

The author of "Mirame," 1642, was Desmarets, Seigneur de Saint Sorlin, the writer of a large number of now forgotten plays. He was one of the first forty members who constituted the Académie Française at its institution in 1634.

96—NAPOLÉON BIDDING FAREWELL TO THE EMPRESS JOSEPHINE IN THE PALACE OF FONTAINEBLEAU

A FINELY composed group of two figures, near a window in an apartment with furnishings of green. The Empress, seated, is seen holding her handkerchief to her face, with her elbow resting on a table, while her left hand is held in the affectionate grasp of the Emperor. The Emperor's military dress, comprising the tints of the tricolor, and the Empress's elegant gown of white satin, with lace over-dress, are painted with restraint of color and excellent breadth of handling. The head of the Emperor, in half-tone, and the neck and shoulders of the fair Josephine, with light falling on them from the window, are cleverly depicted.

116—LANDSCAPE

THE composition shows a road winding through a fine forest, the light from the sky illuminating the foliage in the middle distance. A peasant woman with a bunch of faggots is seen in the roadway. The manner in which the foliage is painted shows a method characteristic of the great landscape painter which he followed, both somewhat analytically, as in this example, and at other times and at a later period, more synthetically. The greens in the foliage are relieved by the dark notes of the trunks of the trees.

120 —ON THE RIVERSIDE

THE scene is in the outskirts of a town with a stream flowing through meadows and sloping hills on its banks. In the left center is a French willow, its trunk forming the important dark note found in practically all of Corot's landscapes. The branches, with gray-green foliage, are not "arranged," but are depicted with the truth of observation that gives a veracious aspect, and the usual accessory figure, a peasant woman with gray, red, blue and white in her costume, stooping over to gather a wild flower, appears in the immediate foreground.

A VERY important and beautiful example of Renoir. A young girl with luxuriant blond hair, which falls to her waist, is depicted seated, in life-size, three-quarter length. She is engaged in crocheting a bit of filmy, white drapery. The white bodice which droops from her right shoulder, the blue skirt, the blond tints of her golden hair, and the blue wall in the background, with a fine accent of black given by the chimneypiece, combine in producing, with the delightful flesh tones of the shoulder, chest, arm and the hands, a rare harmony of restrained but resonant and ample color. In the face, showing a lovely type of French girlhood, are the same beauty of color and the same fine qualities of envelope and surfaces.

THIS picture, showing a group of brilliant-costumed ladies, effectively placed in a composition including the high arches of a viaduct and a forest as background, is a notable example of the work of the renowned colorist in that it belongs to a period of his art earlier than his broader style. His usual color qualities, however, are found here in compelling brilliancy and the ensemble is one of unified harmony.

186—THE MEETING OF SAINT GERMAIN AND SAINTE GENEVIEVE, IN HER CHILDHOOD, AT NANTERRE

In the year 429 Saint Germain d'Auxerre and Saint Loup de Troyes, traveling to England to combat the heresies of Pelagius, arrive in the suburbs of Nanterre. In the crowd which has assembled at their approach Saint Germain notices a child who, to his perception, bears the divine seal, and he predicts to her parents the lofty destiny to which she will be called. This child was Sainte Geneviève, the patron saint of the city of Paris.

THE subject is depicted in three sections, forming one composition. The first shows, in the foreground, fishing boats with oarsmen and sailors drawing up at a landing place, and people carrying the body of a man out of a rustic dwelling. The second shows the holy men in the center of a group of people, with Saint Germain in the act of remarking the child, on whose head he places his right hand. The third depicts, as a balance to the first section, other people of the countryside engaged in their various domestic occupations. The entire composition is enclosed by a border of bay leaves, with gilt monograms, S. G., and an inscription in French (a translation of which is given above) in the lower center of the second section.

Height, 52 inches; length, 102 inches.

Signed on the third section, and dated 1879.

Exhibited at the Grosvenor Gallery, London, 1887, No. 56a; and at the American Art Galleries, New York, where the Verestchagin Collection was sold in 1891.

The most famous, if not the greatest Russian artist, and the only one with a world-wide reputation. The son of a rich landowner, he studied at the St. Petersburg Academy of Fine Arts and gained a silver medal in 1862, and in Paris from 1864 under Gérôme; exhibited at the Salon in 1866. After traveling in Turkestan, India, where he lived for two years, 1874-76, he again returned to Paris; visited India, Syria and Palestine in 1884, and China in 1901. He held public exhibitions of his various series of pictures at different times in England, on the Continent of Europe and in the United States, where they attracted large numbers of visitors. Many examples of his work are in the Tretiakoff Museum at Moscow, and others are in private collections in Europe and America.

321—THE PARKER FAMILY OF AMSTERDAM

GROUP of seven small whole-length figures, the father, mother and five children in the open, near a plaster cast of a classical figure of a man crowned with bay leaves; all in dark-colored dresses and white plain collars, except the youngest child, who is in brown dress and who holds a pail of flowers; trees in background, a brown curtain, forming a tent, suspended from the trees.

Panel: Height, 27½ inches; length, 35 inches.

Purchased of M. Durand-Ruel, who obtained it direct from the family.

NOTE: The Parker family was long prominent in Holland, and portraits of a number of them are now in the Rijks Museum at Amsterdam.

323—PORTRAIT OF A RABBI

THREE-QUARTER-LENGTH figure of an elderly man, seated to front looking at spectator full face; dark-colored dress with red sleeves, edged with white fur and trimmed with brown; gold neck-chain, gray hair and beard, flat black hat, the brim throwing a shadow over the upper part of face; right arm resting on elbow of chair, left hand holding edge of cloak.

Canvas: Height, 37 $\frac{1}{2}$  inches; width, 30 inches.

This very fine portrait is a version of that in the Kaiser Friedrich Museum, Berlin, signed and dated 1645, described by Dr. Bode, No. 297, and illustrated in the "Klassiker der Kunst" volume on Rembrandt, p. 359.

NOTE: This painting was purchased many years ago by Mr. Lambert from Messrs. Durand-Ruel as a work of the School of Rembrandt. Since then it has been seen by numerous connoisseurs and persons of authority who have judged the picture as being by the great master and many flattering offers for its purchase have been made. Very recently in cleaning the picture the signature and date have appeared.

In view of these facts Mr. Lambert feels justified in accepting the picture as an example of Rembrandt, but he does not, however, desire to assume the position of an infallible expert, and therefore places the picture before the public for it to determine whether or not it is an example of the greatest of Dutch masters.

326—LADY KENELM DIGBY

Venetia, younger daughter and co-heir of Sir Edward Stanley, K.B., of Tong Castle; born in 1600, married Sir Kenelm Digby, author and naval commander; died in 1633.

Canvas: Height, 40½ inches; width, 34 inches.

Purchased from Messrs. Dowdeswell & Dowdeswell.

This distinguished lady, who was commemorated in elegies by Ben Jonson and others, sat to many artists for her portrait, the best known of which is by Sir A. Van Dyck at Windsor Castle. Except that he studied under Lucas de Heere, little is known of Marc Geeraerts. Apart from the great picture of the "Spanish Ambassadors" in the London National Portrait Gallery, and the signed ("M. G. F.") portrait of Queen Elizabeth at Welbeck Abbey, ascriptions to him are largely a matter of conjecture.

328—THE HOLY FAMILY

A GROUP of five figures. The Virgin seated, in yellowish and scarlet robes, holding on her lap the nude Infant Christ, who is leaning forward and embracing the child St. John; the latter is in pinkish dress edged with white fur, and by his side is a cross with scroll inscribed "Ecce Agnus Dei"; to the left is a youthful figure (possibly intended to represent St. Joseph) in green robes with pearl and gold pendant of a winged angel-face; to right St. Elizabeth in scarlet and white robes, smiling at the two children.

Panel: Height, 49½ inches; width, 38½ inches.

This exceedingly important picture was acquired by the late Mr. Martin Colnaghi, who intended it for his private collection, which he bequeathed to the National Gallery, London, but he was prevailed upon by Mr. Lambert to sell it. The same model for the Virgin appears in the Budapest group, 1516, and the same model for the St. Elizabeth figures in the Holy Family at Munich, which dates from 1515-1516. The same St. John appears in several of Andrea del Sarto's pictures of the Holy Family. The smiling Child-Christ is characteristic of the Master.

Canvas: Height, 67 inches; width, 37 inches.

From the collection of Lady Penelope Gage, Hengrave Hall, Suffolk.

Several portraits exist in English collections of this unfortunate lady, mostly by unidentified artists of foreign origin who were working in England during the Tudor and early Stuart periods. They differ considerably from one another. One of the earliest, which represents her at the age of thirteen, belongs to the Duke of Portland, and was formerly attributed to Zuccherò, but that artist was not in England as late as 1589.

359—JOSEPH RELATING HIS DREAM

THE youthful Joseph in gold-patterned dress standing to left relating his dream to his father Jacob, who is seated to right in red robes, white turban and with long gray beard; three brothers in conversation to left, girl in rich dress to right.

Canvas: Height, 67 inches; width, 65 inches.

Purchased from Messrs. Dowdeswell & Dowdeswell.

The above described picture was purchased by Mr. Lambert some fifteen or twenty years ago from Messrs. Dowdeswell & Dowdeswell of London as a work of Jan Victors, a pupil of Rembrandt. Many English experts have declared the work to be an example of the great master, and Mr. Lambert, after a long study of the picture, is also of the opinion that the work is by Rembrandt.

AT THE OPENING OF THE GATE

BY

SIR THOMAS LAWRENCE, P.R.A.

SIR THOMAS LAWRENCE, P.R.A.

368—AT THE OPENING OF THE GATE

A GROUP of three whole-length figures of young ladies in a richly wooded park. The eldest, to the right, in gold low dress with brown shawl, is leading a donkey, on which is seated the youngest of the party, in yellow dress and white lace collar; the second sister, to the left, in red low dress, is opening the rustic gate.

Canvas: Height, 95 inches; width, 82 inches.

Purchased in London from a picture-restorer who had it in his possession for twenty-five years and who obtained it from the family. It was then stated that the three young ladies were members of a now extinct branch of the Marquess of Londonderry family.

This fine and imposing group has been accepted as by Sir Thomas Lawrence, and the fact that he painted a large number of the members of the Londonderry family lends color to that claim. No trace has been found to substantiate the Lawrence attribution; and it is quite certain that there would have been some record of a picture of this size and importance if Lawrence had painted it. The probability is that it is the work of Lawrence's assistant, an extremely able portrait-painter who exhibited at the Royal Academy from 1807 to 1843, who was for many years employed by Lawrence in painting the accessories of his pictures and in making copies, and whose work often comes so close to Lawrence's manner that it has frequently been mistaken for his.

*400—DIANA OF THE EPHESIANS

LIFE-SIZE, whole-length of the traditional figure of the Ephesian Diana, with face, hands and feet of black marble; the body of yellow marble, banded mummy-wise, and carved with numerous breasts and other symbols, which signify the earth.

67 inches high; the pedestal, 58 inches high, elaborately carved with winged monsters, masks, fruit and flowers.

NOTE: Finger of right-hand missing and sleeve slightly damaged.

The statue of Diana of Ephesus is said to have fallen from heaven. Minucius says it was a wooden statue, but Pliny described it as made of ebony. There are eight or nine antique statues of Diana of Ephesus, all differing somewhat. The present version agrees with those in the Sciarra Collection and at the Earl of Pembroke's, Wilton House, England. These are respectively figured in La Chasse, "Romanum Museum," 1746, Vol. II, and in Michaelis, "Ancient Marbles in Great Britain," 1882.
